nistrictine for Treasons The Federal Court at Frankfort has indicted a number of the citizens of Kentucky for treason.

Some of these against whom indictments were preferred are in the Confederate armies, and expect to remain there until the independence of the South is acknowledged and the North have ceased their war against the right of a free people to govern themselves.

Others are not in the Southern army. and in no manner have aided or abetted the enemies of the usurpation, whose will the Federal Court enforces to the extent of its power, regardless of the oath of the Federal Judge.

But the question of innocence or guilt never entered the minds of the Federal Grand Jury, and was not considered by them in framing indictments. The private citizen, pursuing quietly his peaceful avocation, and abstaining from all political or military movements, if he had the misfortune to have incurred the enmity of a grand juror, or of a prominent Federal sympathizer, was suddenly held up to the eyes of his astonished neighbors as a traitor worthy of death, while the soldier who has left home. friends, kindred, and is fighting bravely and heroically for that liberty of which ABRAHAM LINCOLN seeks to deprive him by means of his armies and through his corrupt instruments, who disgrace the Halls of Justice, having no personal enemies in high places, is unnoticed and passes unscathed. It is thus that the alleged necessity for supporting by violent and illegal means the tyranny of the usurper is made the pretext for the gratification of the private malice and personal antipathies of these citizens to sink their manhood in doing homage to the destroyers of their liberty, sures, dell the M. danith vil

Thirty-two citizens of Kentucky have been indicted for high treason. Their crime is loyalty to the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of Kentucky. Their offence consists in the efforts they have made and the efforts they are making to defend the institutions of freedom against the encroachments of a President who has, in grasping after absolute power, violated his oath, broken the Constitution, and disregarded all the obligations he owed to his country. The charge laid against them is that they considered their allegiance due to the Constitution and the laws, and not to an administration, and acted accordingly in the war commenced and waged by the President and his party against that sacred instrument and the statutes of the nation and all the decisions of all the tribunals of the land. "The head and front of their offending hath this extent no more." For this grand jury selected with scrupulous care. for the work expected of them by a vile pensioner on the bounty of a tyrant, and charged by Judges who prefers office and its emoluments to private station and the approbation of the good and the true and the wise, has indicted them of an infamous crime, and in so indicting them called the attention of the freemen of the country to the virtues and the courage which thus made them conspicuous marks of Federal hate and fit objects for Federal vengeance.

But in looking over the list of the names of those indicted by the Federal Grand Jury, we are surprised to miss those of ex-Governor MOREHEAD, REUBEN T. DUR-RETT, M. W. BARR, R. H. STANTON, JAMES H. HALL, B. F. THOMAS, GEO. FORRESTER and others now confined in Forts Lafay. ette and Warren on the order of the President. These men, all prominent Kentuckians, have been arrested, carried out of the State, immured in the dungeons of foreign prisons, and denied all the rights which they claimed under the Constitution and the laws. Why were they not indicted? If they are guilty of any crime against the United States, it was the duty of this Grand Jury to prefer indictments against them. If they are charged with having violated any law of the United States, it was the duty of this Grand Jury to investigate the charge and act upon it. Their cases are notorious and the Grand Jury cannot plead ignorance of them. They were not ignorant of them. The Court knew, and the Jury knew, and the District Attorney knew all about the arrest and subsequent treatment of each of the men we have named. The Court knew, the Jury knew, he District Attorney knew, that if these men, or any of them, are guilty of any violation of the laws, it was the duty of that Grand Jury to prefer the charges in legal form against them and bring them to punishment. The failure of the Cour to indict these men, is a confession that theret is no charge against them. The failure of the Court to indict these men is a confession that they were illegally arrested and are unjustly and illegally detained. The failure of the Court to indict these men, is a confession that the President has usurped the power to make arbitrary arrests. The failure of the Court to indict these men, is a confession that the President is exercising the powers he has usurped in an oppressive and unjust manner. The failure of the Court, the Judge. the Attorney and the Jury having shown themselves the abject slaves of the President, is an acknowledgment of the justice of the revolution against the State and Federal usurpations-for allegiance is due to no government where the citizen is not afforded that protection to which the laws entitle him .- Louisville

We have already mentioned that Prentice was dined by the Black Republicans at Washington the other day. The nigger stealers and their guest seemed mutually pleased with each other, as the following report from Forney's press

George D. Prentice, Esq.

Washington Correspondent of Philadelphia Press. This evening a reception was given by Colonel John W. Forney, at his residence, to George D. Prentice, Esq., of the Louisville Journal. A numerous assemblage of distinguished citizens were present among whom were Secretaries Cameron and Smith, Assistant Postmaster Kasson. Assistant Attorney General Coffey, Senators Wilkinson, Trumbull, McDougal and Pomroy; Adjutant General Thomas, Generals Porter and Sykes, Hon. Robert J. Walker, Professor Bache, Hon. Thomas H. Clay, and many others. An hour ssed in pleasant conversation d which Mr. Prentice was introduced to the company. A fine supper was partaken of, at the close of which Secretary Cameron made a few remarks. Mr. Cameron said we were in the midst of a great war-much greater than anybody believed when it first commenced. The most important portion of the country in its relations to the war was Kentucky, and he was gratified to announce that we had present a gentleman who had done more than any other man towards the preservation of the Union. [Applause.] He only regretted that he had not the power of language to say to that gentleman what he thought was due to the services he had conferred upon the country. He referred to Mr. Prentice, of the Louisville Journal. For himself, he (Mr. Cameron) had never had a doubt as to the result of the war. He had faith in the Anglo-Saxon race which covered this continent. He had still greater faith in the virtue, intelligence, courage and enterprise, of the great white laboring population, scattered over the Northern States, in achieving our final success. He had always loved and respected the people of the South, but he had felt that the great North was in the end to carry liberty over the world. by virtue of its force, its courage, and its

In looking into our national troubles he ad felt doubtful of but two or three of the States. He had felt that if Kentucky was but true to herself and the Union. Tennessse would be found ready to second her, and while he saw commercial interests, personal feelings, pride of fam-ily, and other adverse influences at work, he felt no further doubt when he saw that the great paper open its columns in favor of the Union. He then felt that the Union was safe. [Applause.] In conclusion he gave the health, long life, and prosperity of Prentice, of the Louisville Journal. [Renewed Applause.] Mr. Prentice made a few remarks. He said that he merely wished to say, in response, that he agreed with his distinguished friend in his estimate of the magnnitude of this war, and he could only add that he thought the Secretary of War as equal to it.
